But for a few, we are found unprepared. Most always we are given the answers before we are aware of the questions which stimulated them, and so we become confused.

The University cannot be asked to produce Einsteins, da Vincis, or Kants. We can only hope that it affords a setting in which the sincerely baffled mind can resolve itself through interaction with others, involvement with the world, and confrontation with itself. Then it is a successful institution.

Those who are with others
A friend who will listen and nod or Shake a head and disturb the air and aid in understanding will too often be alone

And those who seek silence in a silent universe will too often know the burden
Of a free mind trapped by blindness
And quiet hands choking in the dark

What is called the Ole Miss student has many opportunities for escape: by car, ear, foot, or Unredeeming Prurient Interest. Most often one of these routes is chosen. But there are those who prefer to invest Sweet Daddy's Aid in more beneficial pursuits, such as a Sunday evening in the library.

$$M_n^2 = \left[\int_{-\pi}^{\pi} |f(x) - P_n f(x)| dx \right]$$

$$\leq 2\pi \int_{-\pi}^{\pi} [f(x) - P_n f(x)]^2 dx$$

$$= 2\pi \|f - P_n f\|^2$$

... and God said, Let there be light...

In the dim light of late afternoon the man is lying. Taped and strapped asleep at times often awake always in pain and you must walk softly, whisper.

Do not Disturb his golden slumber of success and yesterday. In the window and through the door the light falls on his face—pied in pale colors, the kin's hop must not be too loud.

Cancer, ulcer ruptured in his gut made of vast stretches of rail and pain and failure.

And blood must be pumped Swiftly, and surely and always, you see to feed his dying losses

" . . . I'm going to take good care of Janis. Ain't no one going to dog me down."

Janis Joplin

Along with the $250,000 AstroTurf, Ole Miss was able to support such fun and games expenses as 1) a chemistry building which has gone without major renovation since 1932; 2) the loss of several professors to other schools because of higher salaries; 3) a largely insufficient student union building; 4) last place in the state football tournament.

One can't help but wonder if there has been a misplacement of priorities.

Our problem is relating. We—in Oxford, Mississippi—know very little of an environmental crisis. The few who read are becoming increasingly convinced of the urgency of preserving human ecology. Apathy implies a cognizance of the situation; we are still in the ignorance stage. It seems tragic that we must wait for pollution to engulf us before we muster the concern necessary for involvement.

Art needs no justification, whether it is in the form of the human body, a smile, or the sun setting over the somber faces of the world.

To laugh with stars seen in their height
Forget the day's sad subtle ache
Breathe freely in the moon's low light
And from the golden vessel take a dream or two for life and death, brotherhood, peace and all those who gaze not in this time at the face of a friend, who fear quiet footsteps in the night.

WELCOME TO Ole Miss
EVERYBODY SPEAKS

So shall we all be, soon and late
Come to the window and see the faces in the street
Huddled people caning limply down an icy walk
Cold winds will fell them.

Eyes that stare back and speak of the past.

Wrinkled hands bent with pain that can grip surprisingly tight. White legs in rolled brown stockings, yellow teeth and meager, dry lips. A stale smell as that of a newspaper before the fire to dry.

But they smile, there is a wisdom of many memories, a store in mind and heart, and feeling for you as you watch. Understanding what you face, for it is all the same.

You too see others who follow.
You remember that time when you looked forward to this age, to the time of freedom and laughter.

But so often now there is a strong burden, and the laughter echoes hollow from somewhere far away.

If you could tell them, hold them back and freeze their growth, for someday they will stand and watch you, and wonder why you take the pain to make your way.

The face turns, unwrinkled
Sees all sees nothing
Sad mists that rise at sunset
Low calls that warn the lonely night
Like dreams the painful fault is touched
But only felt, not known

It can be heard in the long low cries in the morning
As the people rise to die
And all about the sound of pain and fury
The silence of frustration
Glancing off the mountains of the city
Bounding in the valleys of the people
Hurtling wildly over the soft hills and plains
Until it is lost afar in the green sea
Covered in the dark fog
Which the morning sun will lighten and burn away

And so the closing eyes can see
When daylight lies ahead of dawn
Unknown, untraveled but in a dream Turning away, the faces moves on

“porter puts it all together”

To the Chancellor of any University falls the unpleasant but necessary duty of citing value judgements and priorities. The University of Mississippi is particularly blessed to have Porter Fortune acting in this capacity as its Chancellor. Both semesters of the 1970-1971 session presented an assortment of student problems, student demands, university policy crises, opportunity alternatives, etc. The task of putting it all together went to Chancellor Fortune.

THE COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS, founded in 1848, is the oldest and largest division of the University. Comprising a varied and extensive curriculum in the humanities, the natural sciences and the social sciences, the College offers courses in nearly all areas of studies. Since September, 1952, the College of Liberal Arts has been engaged in a Systematic Development Program, the objective of which has been to provide facilities for a genuinely outstanding liberal education.

college of law

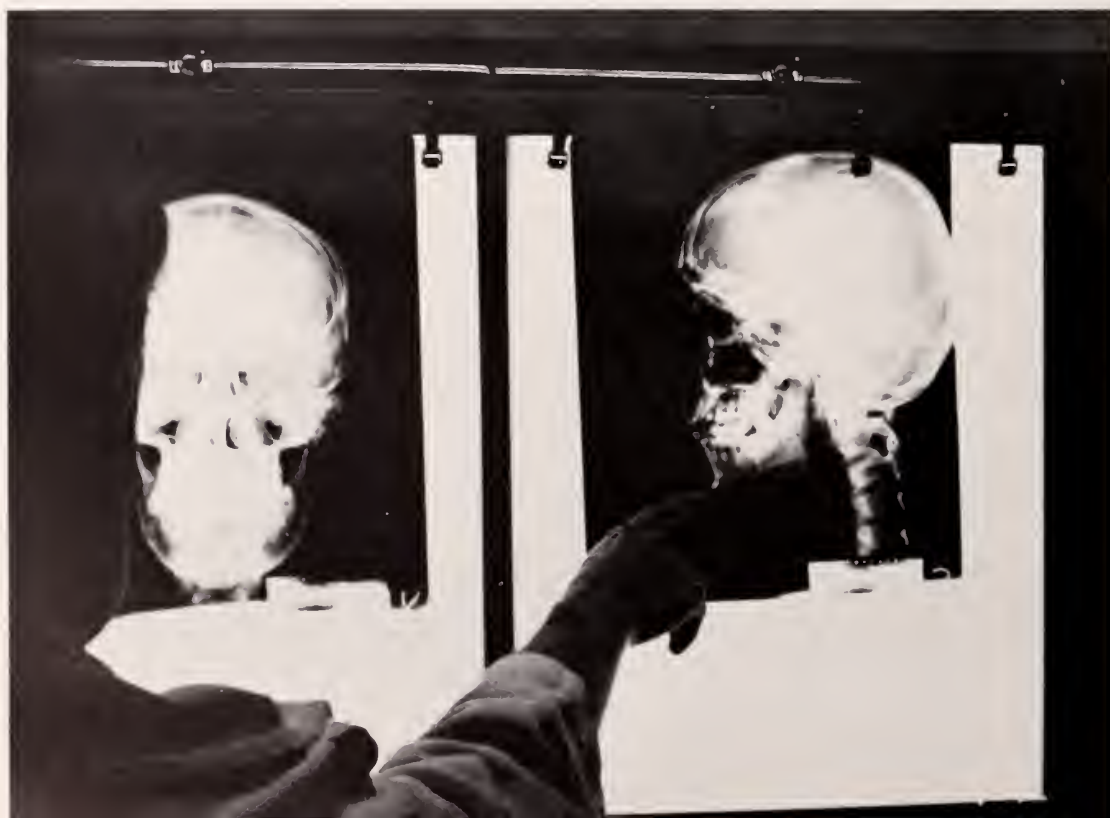

THE LEGISLATURE, by an 1854 act entitled An Act to Create in the University of Mississippi a Professorship of Governmental Science and Law, established a department of law to teach "the philosophy of government and science of law." The School of Law, housed in Lamar Hall, is the fourth oldest state-supported law school in the United States. It is a member of the Association of American Law Schools, and its program at the moment is fully accredited by the American Bar Association. The law degree entitles graduates to practice law in Mississippi without further examination.

The School of Medicine offers the degree of Doctor of Medicine. It also provides instruction for graduate degrees in the medical sciences, and training programs in medical technology, X-ray technology, clinical radioisotope technology, and cytotechnology.

The purpose of the School of Nursing is to prepare students for professional nursing participation in health services, provide the people of Mississippi with registered nurses of high professional competence, and to raise the professional and educational standards of the nurses already practicing.

graduate school

THE UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI from 1848, the date of its formal opening, until 1870 conferred the honorary degree of Master of Arts upon certain of its graduates who had attained intellectual distinction. Courses at the graduate level were first offered in 1870, and in this year also a comprehensive examination as a requirement for the master's degree was established. A definite program of graduate study with a minimum residence requirement of one academic year was inaugurated in 1890.

THE SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING, founded in 1900, is the third oldest school of the University, and the oldest engineering school in the state.

The programs of study offered by the School of Engineering stress the engineering sciences and are therefore based on concepts rather than on equipment. These programs serve the state and the nation in five basic engineering fields: chemical, civil, electrical, geological, and mechanical.

school of engineering

school of pharmacy

The purpose of the School of Pharmacy is to provide thorough instruction for students who desire to acquire the special education and training necessary for the successful practice of pharmacy. Graduates of this School fill responsible positions as community pharmacists, manufacturing pharmacists, hospital pharmacists, analysts of pharmaceutical and food products, and professional service representatives for manufacturers of pharmaceutical, chemical, and medical products.

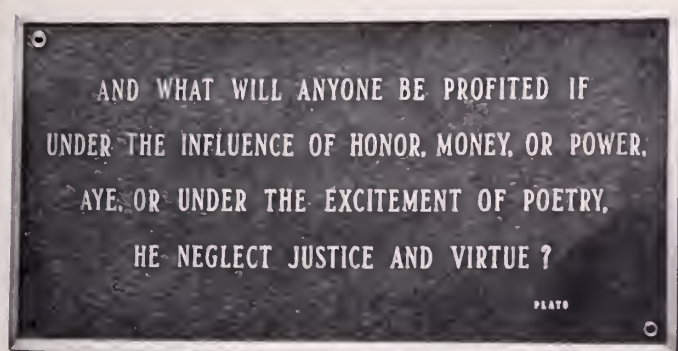

AS THE PROBLEMS OF BUSINESS have grown increasingly complex and increasingly related to social and economic movements, the need for persons especially educated to understand and to cope with these problems has grown. The School of Business Administration has devised its courses and its curriculum to be of use to the graduate who plans to find his place in a position of responsibility, either in his own independent business establishment, in employment at the administrative level in private business, or at a similar level in government.

school of education

THE FUNCTIONS of the School of Education are the preparation of public school personnel and the improvement of educational programs and facilities. Professional courses offered at both the undergraduate and graduate levels of study provide opportunity for pre-service and in-service teacher education. These courses are planned and designed to meet the needs of teachers, supervisors, and administrators who are directly concerned with education. By conferences, surveys, and specialized research activities, the School of Education provides avenues through which all types of schools may secure professional services.

army r.o.t.c. provides a well rounded program

The Army Reserve Officers Training Corps prepares college students for leadership positions in the Army. The Professors of Military Science and the non-commissioned officers carry out the training program established by the Department of the Army.

As a part of the overall Army program, R.O.T.C. develops as leaders those students who display the qualities essential for officers in the United States Army. In this role of providing future Army leaders, R.O.T.C. is indispensable.

As a unit of the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps, the Department of Aerospace Studies focuses on training future Air Force leaders in scholarship, leadership and character.

During the first two years, the academic work consists of subjects which can be described as instruction in air-age citizenship. The final two years places emphasis upon Air Force procedure and applied air tactics.

Leadership drills and class work offers the Air Force cadet training in all aspects of air power and its importance to the security of the nation.

Established at Ole Miss in 1946, the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps prepares students for future naval careers. The program is designed to educate qualified young men interested in earning a commission in the Navy, Marine Corps, or their reserve components.

Participants are classified as either regular or contract students. Regular students are selected by nationwide competitive examinations. They are under a Navy subsidized scholarship program. The Professor of Naval Science selects from applications received during registration the students who are classified as contract students. These students, like the regular students, receive during their junior and senior years a monthly allowance from the Navy.

All graduates of the NROTC program are given commissions in the Navy or Marine Corps.

progressive change— despite limited range

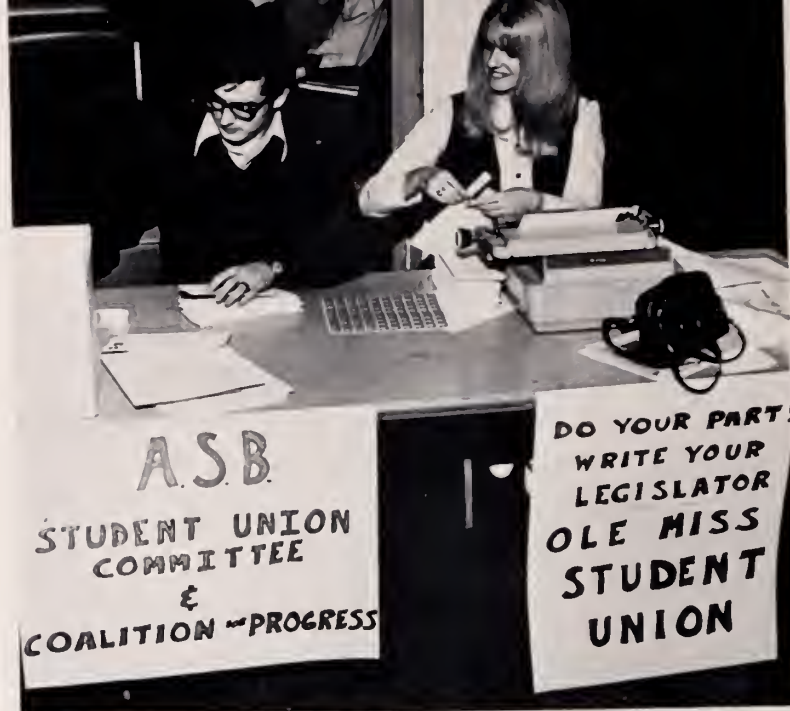

The goal of the ASB this year has been simply to initiate a new approach to student government here at Ole Miss. The feelings of the student body and their suggestions for improvements in our university were brought before the administration with a series of student grievances, student-teacher evaluations, and regular student-administration forums.

The initiation of direct student communication with the Board of Trustees opened new channels of progress for Ole Miss. In a concerted effort to involve all races and nationalities of students in student government, the ASB has entered a new era of activism and involvement for Mississippi college students.

provocative ideas with legislative expertise

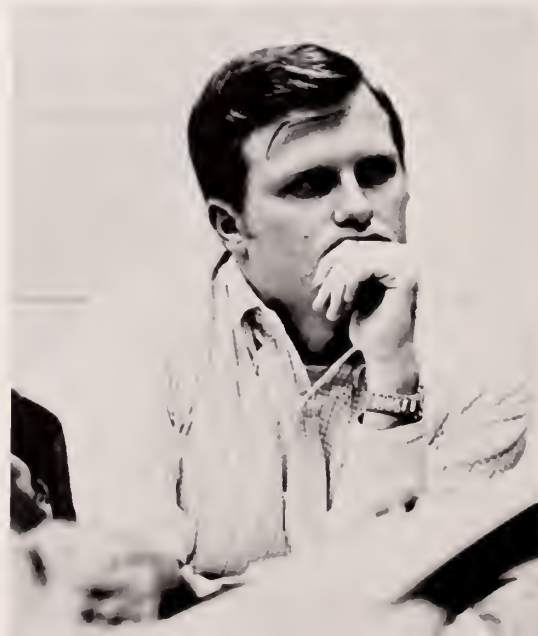

Hard work, intelligence, and progressive thought characterized the capable leadership of Duncan Gray who led the Campus Senate this year. Through bills including a request for extension of women's hours and women's visitation in men's dormitories during certain enforced hours, the Senate proved that the student's ideas can be brought to life.

The law-making body also passed bills which adjusted library hours and promoted an effective system of student-teacher evaluation in an attempt to improve the academic atmosphere of Ole Miss.

Other important amendments which were passed concerned black academic and athletic scholarships and black positions on campus. Perhaps the most important achievement was that Old Miss students saw an enthusiastic Senate generate effective communication between the student body and the administration.

women's lib— at Ole Miss?

In the past the Associated Women Students has been a rather weak organization which sponsored such projects as bridal shows and cake walks. This year's reorganization, initiated by President Sandra Harmon Strom, included the addition of A.W.S. Directors. This new leadership brought about a more relevant direction in A.W.S. affairs with emphasis placed upon the changing ideas of Ole Miss women. With the hope of guiding the future A.W.S., a survey was conducted in which a surprising 68 per cent of the girls on campus responded.

The 1970-71 Daily Mississippian, edited by Bo Bo Champion, continued to print the news of the small world of Ole Miss.

Publication of a daily newspaper is an undertaking which involves long hours of hard work.

The Daily Mississippian is the only regularly printed daily newspaper in the state. It serves as a proving ground for journalism majors and other interested students. In addition the daily publication also serves as a sounding block for Ole Miss' minority of aware students and perennial columnist Mrs. Patricia K. Fawcett.

a.i.ch.e. operates student lounge

The American Institute of Chemical Engineers Student Chapter is a professional organization providing students with a chance to actively participate in the professional aspects of their training while in school. At monthly meetings we strive to inform our chemical engineering students of matters with which they will face upon graduation by bringing to our department well-versed men of the chemical engineering profession and by having professors of our own department and the Engineering School come and speak at our meetings.

As a service to our students, we operate a student lounge; as a social organization, we generally have two parties a year. A.I.Ch.E. provides information of graduate programs and acquires handbooks for our students.

We have approximately forty members in A.I.Ch.E. and we have an average attendance of about twenty per meeting. We have a very active chapter, and have voted ourselves as one of the top ten most active in the United States.

The IEEE has regular monthly meetings, to which they frequently invite well-known speakers. They aid in the preparation of Engineering Day and have regularly planned social events also. Some of the regular meetings are dinner meetings. One annual event is the joint meeting in Oxford with Memphis Section. IEEE also sends representatives to the IEEE Regional Student Convention, which is being held at the University of Virginia this year.

meaningful and relevant—the bsu

The Baptist Student Union is an organization of Baptist youth in higher institutions of learning, designed with the purpose of helping college students grow in their relations with Christ. Membership in BSU is gained by joining the local Baptist church or any unit of church activity such as Sunday School, Training Union, or Brotherhood. While the BSU functions in and through the local church, it centers its planning and leadership in an Executive Council on campus. Any Baptist student may be nominated for this council. The BSU also functions through the Mississippi Baptist Student Convention and the Southern Baptist Convention in worldwide activities. Through daily devotionals, weekly luncheons, purposeful dialogue, and Christian lives, the Baptist Student Union serves the college community and strives to make Christ more alive on the campus.

The Committee of 100 refers to itself as the public relations committee in the area of religion. The visiting speakers are noted and provocative theologians, writers, and scholars who through their lectures and the discussion groups stimulate thought concerning religious and "value" issues relevant to modern life.

singers promote ole miss

The "Group" was formed six years ago by Dr. James Coleman, Chairman of the Music Department, for the purpose of entertaining civic clubs and organizations throughout the state. Since its formation, "The Group" has not only performed for hundreds of civic groups and University organizations, but has entertained at Expo '67, and in the Spring of 1969, made professional USO Tour of Europe singing for our servicemen in Germany. Plans are now underway for a similar USO Tour of Southeast Asia next year. "The Group" also works closely in conjunction with the recruiting division of the University by traveling to high schools and junior colleges all over Mississippi, singing and promoting Ole Miss. This professional troupe is composed of twelve singers and four musicians and are under the direction of Miss Eva Aultman.

realism for experience—moot court

The Purpose of the Moot Court Program is to provide the law student with some practical understanding of the highly technical theory which characterizes his academic training while at the Law School. Each student is required to participate in both the Appellate and Circuit Court Programs conducted by the Moot Court before graduation. The Moot Court Board is composed of students in approximately the top fifteen per cent of their class based on academic standing. Thus constituted, the Board supervises the Moot Court Program, schedules the hearing of some 45 cases a year before practicing attorneys or judges supplied in conjunction with the Mississippi Junior Bar, and helps the individual participants in the preparation of the cases.

In every phase of the Program a concerned effort is made to stimulate a feeling of realism. Under an agreement with the Mississippi Supreme Court, the Board has access to the actual transcripts of trials appearing before that Court for review. The School of Law is fortunate to have a full-sized Moot court Room appointed and equipped in accord with modern requirements.

A high-contrast, black and white photograph of a group of young men sitting on a wooden structure, possibly bleachers or a stage. The structure is composed of dark wooden beams and railings. In the background, a large, bare tree with many thin, dark branches reaches across the upper half of the frame. The lighting is harsh, creating deep shadows and bright highlights. The men are dressed in casual clothing, including sweaters, jackets, and jeans. One man in the foreground is sitting on a lower level, looking towards the camera. Another man is sitting on a higher level, looking down. The overall mood is somber and contemplative.

The constant strain of rough SEC competition left its mark on a talented, but nonetheless inexperienced, Ole Miss basketball squad as the Rebels posted an 11-15 overall record. The Red and Blue stormed to a perfect record after the first six games, swamping opponents who were totally unprepared for the offensive explosiveness of Johnny Neuman and, as one SEC coach put it, a squad which was not "that same old houn'dog basketball team" which Ole Miss usually fields. Eventually, however, a combination of inexperience, inconsistent

reb firepower unable to fell brantley's bird

Seeking to continue a tradition which included three NCAA District III titles, four SEC championships, and eight SEC Western Division titles, the 1970 Ole Miss baseball squad swept to a 25-8 season record. It was a good, but nonetheless futile effort, which came up one short when faced with the necessity of sweeping a three game series from Mississippi State for a chance at a fifth SEC title.

The Rebels were still in the running as late as April 20, when they took three straight games from Alabama to move into a tie for the Western Division lead, but the loss, a week later, of two games in a tripleheader with L.S.U. put the Ole Miss squad at a disadvantage it was never able to overcome. All-SEC recognition went to second baseman John Shaw, who led the Rebels in stolen bases with 28, and shortstop Archie Manning, who led the team in total hits with 35.

rebel open climaxes hole season

In a repeat of last year's performance, the Ole Miss golf team placed seventh in the SEC championship match to finish a 2-1 regular season record. Top linkster for coach Ray Poole's Rebels was Meridian junior, Jim Stahnke, winner of the annual Rebel Open Invitational title. The 2-1 overall record included wins in both the Southern Mississippi and Mississippi State Invitational tournaments.

Ole Miss resumed its climb toward the top of SEC tennis this past spring as the Rebel netters captured ninth place in the annual SEC tournament, held at Mississippi State. Led by senior Erskine Wells, the Rebs compiled a 9-4 overall record, which included a 1-4 mark against SEC competition.

intramurals provide action for restless students

Under the direction of Coach Bonnie Lee Graham, the intramural sports program at Ole Miss seeks to provide an opportunity for the average student to obtain more from university athletics than the usual vicarious pleasure gained from observing intercollegiate varsity competition. Coordinated by an independent and fraternity intramural council, this program offers participation in such sports as football, basketball, tennis, and golf, as well as other activities.

Top: Spring signifies the arrival of sunburns, weak forehands, and overcrowded facilities which provide one tennis court for about every six hundred students. Bottom: Members of the Sigma Chi football team pose with the fraternity football championship trophy which they won.

Top: Members of the overall intramural football champs, the Turtles, are caught during one of their practices. Bottom Left: Showing off various trophies are intramural representatives Terry McCullough, Van Powers, and Tommy Parish. Bottom Right: Not exactly Archie Manning, but then that's not the point.

Welcome to Your City of Oxford

City of Oxford Electric Department

It's an MP&L fact...

1,500,000 more kilowatts of electricity to help Mississippians live better!

One-and-a-half million kilowatts! That's a lot of electric power. But that is what MP&L will add to its system by 1974. Every ten years or so Americans just about double the amount of electricity they use to help them in their homes and at their work—to help them live better.

To meet future power needs for the people in Western Mississippi, MP&L is investing $68 million on construction of the 750,000 kilowatt Unit No. 2 at the Baxter Wilson Steam Electric Station near Vicksburg. It will be operational this year.

And, construction will begin this year on another 750,000 kilowatt generating station near Greenville. Completion is scheduled for 1974.

One-and-a-half million additional kilowatts for the 45-county area of western Mississippi in which MP&L operates! This is an expression of faith . . . a positive way in which MP&L is "helping build Mississippi" . . . and making life better and more comfortable for Mississippians . . . and in all of its plans and projects Mississippians can know that MP&L is using the latest methods to keep our air and water clean and pure. It's an MP&L fact . . . from MP&L you get more than electricity.

MFC SERVICES

The southern farmer's friend since 1922!

Since it's founding in Mississippi nearly fifty years ago, MFC has extended its agri-services into large portions of three southern states. Through over 100 farmer-owned co-op stores in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, MFC today offers the farmer just about everything he needs to make his job easier and more productive. And, the 80,000 folks who do business with MFC co-ops know that whatever they buy there will be top quality — the very best available.

If you are a farmer, you need to know more about MFC's products and services. If you are not already on the steadily-increasing roll of MFC customers, stop by one of our co-op stores and browse — ask questions.

Or write Advertising Department, MFC Services, Box 449, Jackson, Miss., 39205.

Years come and go, and as we grow older they all seem to blend together. Ole Miss 1970-71 was little different from those years of the past. Most of us will remember this year only as having been the year of Archie Manning.

Yet, 1970-71 was also the year of a seemingly never ending war in Indochina, continuing air and water pollution which threaten to choke our cities and nation, and the senseless murders of students within our own state.

It was also the year of a catastrophic disaster in Pakistan, the bombing of our nation's Capitol, and continued starvation and rampant crime around the corners from our own homes.

It is time for Ole Miss to realize that we are part of a larger world that has little time to care for rebel flags and never ending football weekends. Time has come for an awakening in Mississippi and on our campus, and for the realization that the problems of our neighbors across the street and around the world are also ours.

The hour is approaching midnight and we can no longer afford to hesitate. If we fail, one day we will awake to find war and a stagnant society on our own front steps.

The 1971 Ole Miss in its own small way has tried to face a few of these problems. If it causes just one person to take time to look at his world and to spend one moment in thought, it will have accomplished its purpose.
